

WALLY FLEES ENGLAND

Bulletins

London, Dec. 4 (AP)—Wallis Warfield Simpson fled to France today as the result of sudden decision made by King Edward and herself. They did not disclose their plans to anyone. Mrs. Simpson insisted her departure was advisable to permit the monarch to carry on negotiations with the government for settlement of the constitutional crisis.

Cannes, France, Dec. 4 (INS)—Mrs. Wallis Simpson is expected to reach Cannes early tomorrow. She is traveling by automobile and is expected to drive all night. Her car has two chauffeurs. Mrs. Simpson plans to stay at the villa of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Rogers of New York at "Iou Viel."

London, Dec. 4 (INS)—Prime Minister Baldwin called upon King Edward at Fort Belvedere early this evening after he had made his statement to the House of Commons. Another emergency cabinet meeting was called for tomorrow morning.

London, Dec. 4 (INS)—The Duke of York, who will become sovereign of the British empire if King Edward abdicates, held a 45-minute conversation with Queen Mary at Marlborough House today.

London, Dec. 4 (INS)—The Duke and Duchess of Kent spent 35 minutes with Queen Mary at Marlborough House this afternoon. The Duke, youngest brother of King Edward, is said to be the most friendly toward Mrs. Simpson of all the King's royal relatives.

Marlow's "Tale that launched a thousand ships and burned the towers of Ilium," has not disappeared from the earth. The face of a charming young woman today has power to upset the British Empire, raising the nation to say to the King, "I have no more room for you."

Nero, fiddling while Rome burned, might be called a serious statesman compared with the British cabinet, with the danger of world war blazing around it, threatening to upset the British Empire from within, over the silly issue of the King's right to marry a respectable and desirable young woman.

The latest news reports the King ready to defy Stanley Baldwin, the prime minister, and the dramatic British position, a crisis that would not subject, and have not subjected in the past, to half a dozen or more royal mistresses, their illegitimate children transformed into only yesterday England's population and press were praising the King as a great business builder for the empire, the faithful worker for his people. England's present middle class ingratitude reminds you of the treatment accorded to Lloyd George after his courage, resourcefulness and energy, combined with the fighting spirit of the old Frenchman, Clemenceau, had saved the British and their allies from defeat.

The sympathies of this country are with the King, regardless of the fact that the lady in the case happens to be of American birth. Europe and the world in general are in a dangerous condition, the British Empire might be broken up, from the air, in a dozen places. Somewhere might be read to Prime Minister Baldwin, "Changing horses while crossing a stream."

But, those tender words about "All for love and the world empire" will not, may not interest young King Edward, who possesses will, power, and has been brought up in an atmosphere not calculated to develop submissive humility. To abdicate would be to "quit," and the King has done nothing that would justify his being made a quitter.

A job is what you make it. The King may decide to prove that a British monarch is not necessarily a figurehead. If the cabinet, perhaps there will be a general election, and the King might ally with the help of the radio, Baldwin could hardly keep him "off the air."

It is hypocrisy in England, but if the King should say to the people, "I have given my word, do

CALM TO END, WALTER DIES ON GALLOWS

San Quentin Prison, Cal., Dec. 4 (INS)—Albert Walter, Jr., 28-year-old son of a Boston merchant, got his wish today.

He was hanged for the murder of red-haired Blanche Cousins, whom he strangled with a silk stocking.

Accompanied by the Rev. George O'Mara, was placed on the gallows at 10:02 a. m. (EST) p. m. Boston Times and 35 minutes later he was pronounced dead.

Just before the painful snare guillotined the death chamber he laughed and exclaimed to Deputy Warden Ralph Snow:

"It's a great life if you don't wake."

The chin was high as he walked steadily toward the gallows before 40 civilians, witnesses and nine guards. Two news photographers were among the witnesses, but they displayed no cameras.

It was to have been a double execution, but at the last minute William Zerkow, bandit slayer, scheduled to die with Walter, was reprieved by Governor Frank F.

Must Not Marry Wally, Baldwin Warns King

PARIS—Mrs. Wallis Simpson, traveling like a queen incognito, seeks refuge in France, "haven of royal exiles," her actual destination a closely-guarded official secret. It appears likely she will rest at the home of Lady Mendl, wife of Sir Charles Mendl, in Versailles.

DON'T ABDICATE' APPEAL TO EDWARD

"WALLY IS FINE, BUT..."

London, Dec. 4 (AP)—King Edward and Mrs. Wallis Simpson were subjects of universal editorial comment in London newspapers today.

Marriage between the ruler and Mrs. Simpson "would scandalize a very large proportion of the nation and empire and therefore do infinite harm to the whole institution of British monarchy," declared the conservative Times.

The newspaper based its statement on the fact "the lady in question already has two former husbands living."

"The king is free to choose," said the Express, adding: "You must believe that he will choose wisely. The king, through war and peace, strike and stress, has borne his part in the eyes of all men as a son of kings should do, and since he took the cloak of kingship he has deepened the channels of our emotions towards him."

"There is a way out," suggested the Liberal News-Chronicle. "King Edward should agree to marry Mrs. Simpson in his capacity as Duke of Cornwall or Lancaster, rather than make her his queen. At the same time he should acquiesce to an act of exclusion, passed by Parliament, debarring from succession to the throne any heirs of his marriage."

Oil on Trouble

Lessening of the crisis was indicated by the Manchester Guardian, after described as the most influential political newspaper. It said:

"Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin's assurance in the House of Commons that there was no constitutional difficulty may legitimately be regarded as a most important confirmation of the hope all of us have been cherishing since the direct conflict between the wishes of the king and the advice of his ministers was first announced."

Direct opposition to royal criticism was expressed by the Daily Mail which asserted the contrary position, the newspaper attacks which have been made by editors.

Lords Meet, Not Told Of Crisis

London, Dec. 4 (AP)—The House of Lords met in a busy day today. Parliamentary members of the House of Commons, just across the lobby, engaged in debate on the constitutional crisis.

The lords sat in silence for two minutes during the reading of a bill dealing with the postal highways and then adjourned.

No word of the dispute between the king and cabinet was yet seeped into the upper house officially.

Some critics who have shown no wish to want of human understanding, however, said today:

"Admission is not of the question," the Mail stated.

"The Telegraph declared: 'It matters in the highest degree, matters of national importance, that the first lady of the land shall be supported as of late have been in general as affairs have been in general circulation throughout the world.'"

"Need U. S. Blood"

The Herald's Chronicle carried a threat of developing comment in its "Letters to the Editor" column. Many of the writers argued the king should marry the "woman of his choice."

"New blood is needed in the English royal family, one letter asserted, adding: 'Why not an American to furnish it?'"

"If we were to have a democracy in the United States, as a democracy is naturally an ally of England, we have dropped the Japanese and put them in the arms of France."

The Herald's Chronicle again declared the dispute concerned constitutional questions and had nothing to do with the king's personal wish to marry a commoner.

"In the Labor party, marriage with a commoner, if the king were the issue, would give much democratic satisfaction," the Herald said.

"But that is not the issue. And of all parties, Labor must be most sensitive to constitutional implications of the dispute where the outcome has public consequences between the king and the government which the people have freely chosen to represent."

The Sussex Daily News referring to the crisis declared:

"It smacks more of the Balkans than of Shakespeare's England."

"The unhappy situation here on the King's friendship with an attractive American lady who has been twice married already."

"Her family claims connections with a Norman house that came over with William the Conqueror but her mother at one time kept a Baltimore lodging house."

In a front page editorial the

Three Royal Brothers Confer

King's 'No' Crisis Crucial

The so-called "constitutional crisis" growing out of the refusal of King Edward and Mrs. Wallis Simpson, arises from the fact that His Majesty has declined to accept the advice of his government, which is to force him to abdicate.

The advice rendered him was that he drop the affair with the American-born beauty. He could not see it that way.

Daily Worker, Communist spokesman, said:

"There is no crisis in this business for the working class. Let the king marry who he likes. That is his personal business."

The Daily Worker called on Baldwin to resign and let Labor take over the "real burning issues," such as unemployment, the depressed areas and the crisis in Spain.

A similar note was struck in an article in the Worker's official page by John Stricker, author of "The Coming Struggle for Power," which said it was "longer a question of whether a royal young Englishman (son of a private man) shall marry an American divorcee."

Another editorial in the paper said the affairs of King Edward VII were the commonplace gossip and scandal of the press of the world for years, but that his royal appearance at church and his refusal to conform to the ordinary and royal duty."

In one of the many conferences that have been held in connection with the love tangle that is giving such concern to the British government, due to the plan of King Edward to wed Mrs. Wallis Simpson, these three royal brothers met. Left to right, King Edward, Duke of York and the Duke of Gloucester. The fourth brother, Prince George, was not at the conference.

KING, WALLY SHOW SIGNS OF STRAIN

London, Dec. 4 (AP)—Fighting for their love through a terrible 48 hours of anxiety, both King Edward and Mrs. Wallis Simpson today showed signs of strain.

Picture of the King published today showed his face marked by tragedy. Queen Mary, snuggled up to him, looked as if she were about to cry.

As he never before had seen their King.

At the moment of the cheering crowd, he heard to the diners a few that almost failed, although his lips were grimly set. His face told the terrible odds against which he was trying to hold out for the love of the woman who had made a new-made man of him.

His brow was bent in distress, and his eyes filled with tears.

Meanwhile Mrs. Simpson, according to reports, was in a state of constant nervous tension. The crisis of the last few days has brought her to the verge of a serious breakdown so that she requires frequent medical attention.

VAST

Throngs Hail KING

London, Dec. 4 (INS) — Always symptomatic of the pulse of the British public during days of intense stress, crowds today massed at all the focal points in the King's marriage crisis.

Centers of interest for throngs who cheered every time actors in the historic drama appeared were Buckingham Palace, the Duke of York's residence in Piccadilly, the House of Parliament, No. 10 Downing Street and the residence of Mrs. Wallis Simpson at No. 16 Cumberland Terrace, even though she is out of town.

"The King must not abdicate," chanted the crowd outside the high grill fence of Buckingham Palace after the brightly uniformed guards had gone through their daily ceremony of the changing of the guard.

Truce silence settled over the hundreds there when King Edward, alone in his big limousine, drove up to the gates, looking tired from care and lack of sleep, but in a second a tremendous cheer rose and caps waved in the air.

The strains of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" mingled with the strains of trumpeting and the cheers.

It was the most spectacular public demonstration of loyalty for King Edward yet staged. The huge crowd cheered and sang for the monarch while the guard was being changed at the palace.

A man in the throng at the gates called for three cheers, which were heartily given. The national song, then, and the "Good Fellow" song followed, and the demonstration ended with another burst of cheering.

Cheers also greeted the Princesses, Elizabeth, who may some day be Queen Elizabeth II, and Margaret Rose as they left the dim, gray home of their father, Albert, Duke of York, near Hyde Park corner.

Love, Revolution Cost Men Crowns

By CHARLES A. SMITH

International News Service Staff Correspondent

London, Dec. 4 (INS)—Romance, revolution, or a bit of both—these are the things that cost men thrones, historians found today as they searched through pages of the past from the time of Marco Anthony's dalliance with Cleopatra for parallels to the present British constitutional emergency over royal marriage plans.

Charles I was a king who lost his head over a throne; Carol I, of Rumania, is a modern example of a king who lost his head and then his throne—but in the latter case the deposed monarch found Carol back on his throne, and the lovely Italian Mrs. Mada Lupescu still in high royal favor.

Gaby Deslys, an intriguing figure who ever danced before the Parisian footlights, danced a throne right out from under Manuel of Portugal, who dropped her singly duties to become a stage-door johnny.

Result—he reigned for less than two years, although it did take a revolution in 1910 finally to shake him loose from his scepter.

SIAM KING "FED UP" Little King Prajadhipok of Siam abdicated principally because he was fed up with arguing with his revolutionaries. Alexander of Yugoslavia was shot.

Three successors, Ananda of Siam and Peter of Yugoslavia, are in the underworld in his danger of losing their thrones for marital reasons.

But in an almost perfect analogy to the case of King Edward and Wallis Simpson, a marriage with a seven-year-old girl, a wild figure in the controversy between Edward II of England and his ministers.

COME TO U. S. LEWIS BIDS KING

ASSURES EDWARD OF HAVEN

New York, Dec. 4.—Sir David Lewis, famous American novelist and Nobel Prize winner, wrote to King Edward today urging him to come to America, and promising him the greatest welcome ever accorded a visitor to our shores.

The letter sent by Lewis to the King is as follows:

Sir:
David Windsor. We don't know quite what has happened, but one thing we can tell you: That the whole of the United States of America is so excited that you have become a human being instead of the King of England.
Come over here. We have loved England more than any other country in the world, but we are a funny sort of people. We have a feeling that a man has a right to his own private life.
David, come over here!

His Own Wife

There are only a few nations in the world that still believe in a democratic government, and especially your country and ours. We are a funny people because we believe in righteousness. We believe that a man must have his own conscience, his own wife. We believe that, perhaps, the most important thing that has happened in the last 100 years is whether David Windsor should have his own wife or not.

We believe that it is perhaps more important to the British Empire that a young man in England named David Windsor should be completely loyal to the King than that he should be a King. We don't know what is going on, but the only thing we can say is that if David Windsor wants to come to America he will be received as an guest ever has been. (Signed)
DAVID LEWIS

End of Monarchy

This is how Lewis came to write his letter to the King.
When he saw this morning's newspapers, Lewis, who won the Nobel prize for literature for his ability to portray the lives and thoughts of average Americans, decided that it was time for some one in the United States to express his ideas about King Edward VIII and Mrs. Wallis Simpson.

To Lewis, the British governmental crisis over the King's private life is one of the most momentous events of recent history. And with his knowledge of the British people, King Edward and England's political leaders, Lewis anticipated today's developments last night.

Foreseeing the deadlock between the King and his ministers, Lewis was up most of the night at his home at 17 Wood End avenue, Bronxville, thinking about its possible consequences.
He came to the conclusion that it presaged the end of a constitutional monarchy unique in the world's history.

Calls in Aides

He was up before the morning newspapers brought confirmation of his expectations, and he decided at once that it was time for some one to present an American point of view of the British crisis.
He called in his secretaries, L. E. Flory and Mrs. Peggy Wilson, and after discussing his ideas with them wrote "an open letter" to King Edward VIII, which appears in the Boston American today.

While his novels have made him available for shrewd insight into American character and have repeatedly expressed the ideas of less articulate Americans, Lewis did not pretend to be speaking for any one but himself in this article.

When he had finished presenting his view, he telephoned his wife, Dorothy Thompson, the newspaper commentator, who is in Prague.
"Dorothy, for God's sake, go to London," he said. "The greatest news event of a hundred years is taking place here."
Lewis would not add any comment to his letter, feeling that he had expressed in it everything he had to say.

SUPPORT FOR KING

Free Churches' Against Baldwin

London, Dec. 4.—(AP)—England's "free churches"—Baptists and Methodists in which a majority of the working and middle classes belong—are not pressing King Edward to abandon his friendship with Mrs. Wallis Simpson, their leaders declared today.

The attitude of the "free churches" was stated by the Rev. Dr. T. Young, minister of Westminster Central Hall, a Methodist church, and the Rev. M. E. E. secretary of the Baptist Union of Great Britain and Northern Ireland.

The church officials declared they would refuse to give support to Prime Minister Baldwin, at least until he announced his plans for the government.
They acknowledged they view Mrs. Simpson's two divorces as a more interesting light than does the king's.

TODAY By Arthur Brisbane

you wish me to break it?" The answer should be NO.

You've heard, perhaps, that the value of American home-made securities has risen within a year, by $15,000,000,000. That value went on increasing yesterday; stocks went up. In England, because a young man plans to marry a thoroughly estimable young woman, British stocks fell down. Men are little; little things influence them more than big things.

In this proud Democratic republic, Mrs. "Wally" Simpson has driven the President of the United States away from many front pages, but it was not to know that he is on his way home from Buenos Aires after stopping to congratulate the President of Uruguay on "great advances in behalf of the well-being of your citizens."

In his brief address the President said: "The first battlefield of peace is that of securing well-being at home."
Even Maine and Vermont will agree to that; the question is, how can it be done.

Newton D. Baker, Woodrow Wilson's Secretary of War, who celebrated his 65th birthday yesterday, says war will start in a big way "as soon as statesmen make up their minds either that they want to fight or that they can't help fighting." It may happen also when some "statesman" makes a foolish mistake and some equally foolish nation begins shooting. One small, important murder may threaten to start the first.

The spectacle of Madrid under bombardment should send back to the world war that threatened, but human beings learn slowly.

There are queer things about American mercantile shipping. The government supplies money to build the ships, at low interest with long loans. Then union labor will not let the ships run. Government says that if you go from one American port to another on a ship not under the American flag you will be fined $200. An intelligent young American woman, Mrs. Cromwell, who was Doris Duke, and had a rich father, was compelled to go to Honolulu last week to see about her new house and swimming pool there. Only a Japanese boat could take her, and she was fined $200.

This government should find some way to keep American merchant ships running; after lending money to build them; even if it has to run the ships itself.

The French government owns railroads, and in one strike it calls the strikers, all in the military reserve, to the colors, ordering them to go to work. To refuse would have meant mutiny and shooting; they go to work.

It is good news that a new, big American army bombing plane, called "largest in the world," with a cruising radius of 3000 miles has had a successful first trip, and will be more like it will be built. "Small mercies" thankfully received.

The new ship has four engines, of 1000 horsepower each. It would be more useful with a cruising range of 2000, instead of 3000 miles. Uncle Sam might want to cross the Pacific some day; all hope he will never need fighting planes over there—could he MIGHT.

Dr. Francis E. Townsend, who had a plan to give every old person $200 a month, is to be shown by a grand jury for contempt because he "walked out on" a House investigating committee. Congressmen used to walk around Dr. Townsend's grocery bag, for maybe he did have the balance of power in his pocket. The Main-Vermont Republican vote calmed those fears, and asserted would-be dictators have shrunk in importance.

WEDDINGS COURT BALDWIN FORBIDS BRIDAL

BALDWIN CHEERED AS HE BARS WALLY AS QUEEN

After groaning against government and minor critics of its attitude, the king smiled at the cheering of his subjects.

"Mrs. Simpson went during the night straight from Liverpool to France to meet developments in England."

Even as the first Parliament rose, the king smiled at the cheering of his subjects.

Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin greeted the assembly to the House of Commons that the government had decided to oppose the king's alleged intention to marry Mrs. Simpson and keep the throne.

"Bridal Illegal"

Baldwin said Edward's marriage to Mrs. Simpson was "completely illegal" and that it would make her queen which would be a "disgrace to the nation."

The government refused to introduce legislation.

The constitutional change, he added, would require the assent of all the dominions.

"I am satisfied from inquiries I have made that this assent would not be forthcoming," he said.

An compromise, by which Mrs. Simpson could marry Edward VIII but not become queen, would be unconstitutional, the prime minister said, and a "disgrace to the nation."

"There is no such thing as what is called a non-committal marriage known to our law," he asserted.

Baldwin Cherched

When the prime minister from the House of Commons, he was cheered by the king's subjects.

"In view of what I have said, suggestions as to certain possibilities in the event of a marriage, I think it would be advisable for me to make a statement."

Baldwin had been cheered long when he entered the House.

He looked toward the right and the left as he spoke, and then toward the House of Commons.

Discussing conversations with the king and the monarch's wish for compromise legislation, Baldwin said that the king's subjects would be disappointed if the king's subjects were to be disappointed.

Thus, he blocked completely, so far as his government is concerned, Edward's hope of marrying Mrs. Simpson on his own terms.

Baldwin was believed strongly in the position by the House of Commons, although it was not yet a vote against the king's proposal.

Edward's dilemma.

If Edward refused to yield to Baldwin, the next step would be the resignation of the government and the king faced with the problem of getting a new ministry willing to fight a constitutional battle on his behalf over the American-born divorcee.

Edward's other alternative was to give up the throne in exchange for a voluntary deed of abdication.

To continue his present reign, Baldwin was left with a choice of two paths.

It was believed the king would choose the path of the fight for his throne and Mrs. Simpson, and having said that, Baldwin was to fight a constitutional battle on his behalf over the American-born divorcee.

Baldwin's chief assistant, Lord Birkenhead, was believed to be in the position of a "king's man" in the House of Commons.

British Deny Prejudice to Wally

London, Dec. 4 (AP)—Sir Ronald Lindsay, British ambassador to Washington, has advised that, if he considers it advisable, he may call at the State Department with the assurance that the British government is not prejudiced against Mrs. Simpson's marriage in any way dictated by the fact that Mrs. Simpson is an American, it was learned today.

It would be by legislative dealing with a divorcee's name.

"His Majesty's government are not prepared to introduce such legislation."

Lindsay's statement was made in the House of Commons.

"However, the matter is to be dealt with as a common concern to the commonwealth as a whole, and such a change cannot be effected without the assent of all the dominions," Baldwin continued.

"I am satisfied from inquiries I have made that this assent would not be forthcoming."

Harvey Davis, John Bannerman and Edwin D. Lee, already under life sentence for the shooting of a Detroit police officer, were given additional sentences of life imprisonment for the murder of the officer.

MUCH DISAGREEMENT

Meanwhile, we have been gathering the opinions of several Boston socialites—and there's a lot of disagreement here on what the King should do about Wally, and what Wally should do about the King.

Said Mrs. Paul D. Rust, Sr., of Commonwealth avenue:

"Mrs. Simpson should step out of the picture."
"Knowing the friction that her romance with the King is causing, the only right thing for her to do is to disappear from England as unobtrusively as possible."

"She should merely write the King a note, telling him her decision and saying a definite goodbye."

"It seems a pity to me that an American woman should upset the English empire to such a dangerous degree."

"If Mrs. Simpson really loves the King, she should wake up to the realization that the greatest service she could do him would be, as I said before, to step out of the picture."

"His people first."

"I don't mean to say anything against Mrs. Simpson."

"I have a friend in England who knows her and who has told me that Wally is extremely brilliant, attractive and delightful woman."

"I don't blame King Edward for loving her—but his people should come first."

On the other hand, Mrs. Malcolm Bradley French, president of the Charities Club, said:

"King Edward should follow the dictates of his heart. And his people have no right to interfere with his happiness. I say he should marry Mrs. Simpson, and more power to them both."

Said Mr. Leverett Saltonstall, of Broadway:

"With world affairs so unsettled, I think it is very unfortunate that such a problem should have arisen at this time."

"A GOOD QUEEN"

Dr. Abner J. Shadman, of Jamaica Plain, and director of the Forest Hills (Grove) hospital, said with some spirit:

"I take no part off to the King. I hope he marries her—and it will teach the English people a good lesson if he abdicates."

"Personally, I think Mrs. Simpson would make a darn good queen."

Miss Margaret Slade, of Commonwealth avenue, Back Bay:

"I think the King is making a great mistake if he marries Mrs. Simpson."

"In the first place, she won't be happy. Everyone will snub her."

"If he wants to abdicate and marry her, well and good. Every body loves his brother the Duke of York. And, besides, the present king always has intimated he doesn't care particularly for the life of a king."

Mrs. Charles H. Innes, of Bay State Road:

"If I were Mrs. Simpson, I'd be on my way to the United States right now. And if I were King Edward, I would realize that kings should make sacrifices for their people. It's the price he must pay for being king."

And so it goes. No one has exactly the same idea on the subject. So now what YOU have to say.

Laborite M.P. Says King Can Wed Mrs. Simpson

London, Dec. 4 (INS)—King Edward VIII has the right to marry whomever he chooses, and the lady thus honored automatically becomes the Queen of England, Colonel Josiah Wedgwood, Laborite M.P. and chief parliamentary supporter of the monarch in his marriage crusade today.

Colonel Wedgwood yesterday insisted Parliament of his intention to submit a bill ending the House of Commons to recognize no monarch who had not King Edward and his wife as legal monarchs.

"When I ask why the King should not marry Mrs. Simpson," Wedgwood said, "the answer—based on I don't know what—is that the aristocrats and the dominions would not stand for it."

SCOTLS AT PRESTIGE

"Our prestige abroad—as high as after Vienna and Spain—would suffer."

"The idea of sovereignty going on strike may well raise a smile. As for the dominions, it was only yesterday that these Jeremiahs were saying England wouldn't stand for it."

"Now, forsooth, it's the dominions."

"So far as Parliament or law is concerned, the King can, if he chooses, marry a lady and then she becomes queen."

"The king to whom we swore allegiance only 11 months ago will still be legally king whether the coronation takes place or no, or whether the ceremony varies or not."

Earl of Warwick Seeking Divorce

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Hollywood, Dec. 4.—The divorce of Michael Brook won't mean a thing to you and maybe the divorce of Charles Gray Blake Greene, Earl of Warwick, won't either, considering that England has been appealing to bigger and better divorcees recently.

But the young Earl of Warwick, under contract as screen actor Michael Brook, admits he expects to seek a divorce from the former Rose Bingham, whom he married at a brilliant wedding in London four years ago.

Today the young actor-nobleman said to the writer:

"Yes, it's true. I'm obtaining a divorce from my wife, whom I haven't seen for two years."

"English divorce laws, as you know, are much more complicated than those in America."

"I have just signed the papers, which will be returned to my lawyer, and he has been instructed to proceed immediately with my case."

Beyond that, he refused to go into the detailed reasons for the divorce, but the film colony remembered how persistently these two have avoided one another during the past two years, managing very skilfully not to be in Hollywood the same time.

WINE Sippers in ACTION

TOUGH (?) JOB FOR REPORTERS

By LUTHER CONANT, JR.

When a city editor tells a reporter to go out and sample wines "in line of duty"—that's news—good news.

And that is just what happened to Boston reporters when they were assigned to cover the "First Tasting" of the Wine and Food Society held in the Princess Ballroom of the Hotel Somerset.

E. Schaefer Welch, Boston attorney and international liquor connoisseur of the grape, who is one of the charter members, had only one word of warning—"enjoy your wines."

"The enjoyment of wine," he said, "is not something to be taken seriously; it is a pleasant means of relaxation."

In an atmosphere of tinkling glasses and poppingorks he introduced the reporters to the highly satisfactory mysteries of "tasting."

MATTER OF TASTE
Chateau claret and sauternes, each the pride of a French "proprietor," graced the tables.

In order not to dull the tongue, the lighter and first growth clarets were sampled first, and then the sweeter, denser, sauternes.

The "low vintages" speaks of his work in terms of bouquet and body, color and clarity, sweetness or dryness.

But it's really just a matter of individual taste, according to Attorney Welch.

This reporter dabbled before the table laden with the finest fruit of the Chateau Mouton-Rothschild, vintage of 1929, and a very good year, indeed, they say.

It has no aroma, he was told, of ruffles and mushrooms.

There is a very delicate art to the sipping of wine. A small swallow should be rolled around and around on the tongue and then, immediately after swallowing, breath deeply of the aroma and exhale through the nose.

This reporter twisted his glass, obeyed instructions, and nearly choked to death. But he was assured it really takes years of practice.

Incidentally there is a knack to twisting a wine glass that starts with the thumb and ends with a quick snap of the wrist. Not for the untutored.

SOCIETY REPRESENTED
The Burgundy claret are designed to be drunk with almost kinds of meat, sauternes may accompany either fish or dessert, depending upon their sweetness.

Impressive above all was the quaint picture of the "sommelier," his neck and arched your preference.

Boston society was amply represented at this first tasting.

Mrs. Nelson Aldrich particularly enjoyed the Chateau d'Yquem, generally hailed as an "extraordinary vintage."

Judge Henry T. Lummus snuffed appreciatively over a glass of Chateau Margaux.

Mrs. Chatfield Whitman and William T. Aldrich, president of the society, were among the guests of several of the claret.

Mr. and Mrs. Vassar Pierce of Milton, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Desires and Mrs. Charles Coleman, author of a widely read book on wines, added their accounts.

JUST INFORMAL
Mrs. Coleman explained that the purpose of the society was to give more a better understanding of the equipment and use of wine.

She pointed out that for $13 a month the average family could enjoy good wine on the table for six nights a week. The various wines at the tasting, she said, had been supplied through the courtesy of the proprietors.

There was no boozing that the enlightening interest was in the slow rather than the quick sip.

But something more a social gathering took place. It was a draw in the world of better times. With the day of the second session, could more again turn to the "mature pleasure of life."

The wine, starting in the cellar was cooled by hot water in a wooden barrel, first offered to the guests.

Drinks out on the first floor were kept till the end of the evening. John Ellis and Ava Ellis, and from the second floor, Mr. and Mrs. John Conant and his two daughters, Mary and Anna.

The cameraman takes you to the "First Tasting" of the Wine and Food Society, held at the Hotel Somerset. "What will you have, your honor?" asks the wine servant, "one of the sauternes, or do you prefer the claret?"

Before the wine, there come the hors d'oeuvres. Enjoying the last appetizers here are Mrs. Chatfield Whitman and William T. Aldrich, president of the Wine and Food Society, which held a "First Tasting" at the Hotel Somerset.

"Delicious!" exclaims Mrs. Vassar Pierce of Milton, after she sips one of the choice wines. "Yes, isn't it?" says her husband, Mr. Vassar Pierce. They were among the many Boston socialites who attended "First Tasting" of the Wine and Food Society, at the Hotel Somerset.

And here is Mrs. Nelson Aldrich testing one of the first growth clarets. Her happy expression seems to indicate she is enjoying the tempting beverage.

Here's another "Old Man of the Mountain." You probably have seen the unique formation of rock—showing an old-man's head, as if tossed back on a pillow—along Center street, Jamnia Farm. An artist brush added the pipe and whiskers. Otherwise the formation is as you see it.

— For Digestion's Sake ... Smoke Camels

Good digestion helps bring a sense of well-being and contentment

THE delightful effect of smoking Camels with your meals and afterwards has been proved again and again in the great laboratory of human experience. Explorers, champion athletes, people in hazardous outdoor work, as well as millions of men and women in homes and offices, find that Camels get digestion off to a good start and make the perfect ending to a meal. When you enjoy Camels, you are rewarded with an increased flow of digestive fluids—alkaline digestive fluids—so important to good digestion. And you can enjoy Camels as often as you like. Throughout the day, get an invigorating "lift" in energy with a Camel! Camels don't get on your nerves or irritate your throat.

Deep in the jungle fastness of Central America amid the ruins of a lost city...

Lawrence T. K. Grosswald, explorer, has been in the jungle for months. He has discovered the ruins of a lost city and has been exploring the area. He has found many interesting artifacts and has been documenting his findings.

THIS CO-ED SAYS: "Camels set me right! Mental work often gives me a bit of indigestion," says Miss Josephine (P.N.S.). "During meals Camels are a real digestive. After meals they make food seem more as good."

A FLIGHT DISPATCHER needs to be on the alert. Tension makes him right on the job, says H. E. Anderson, TWA flight dispatcher at Newark Airport. "Camels help my digestion and ease my nerves."

COSTLIER TOBACCO

FROM MARTHA LEE'S FRIDAY MORNING BROADCAST OVER STATION WMBZ

TIME was when certain foods were considered healthy to be enjoyed only when in season.

Now, however, the season is no longer a factor in the selection of foods. We can now enjoy the fruits of the tropics and the vegetables of the north at any time of the year. This is a most fortunate development, for it allows us to enjoy the best of both worlds. We can now enjoy the fruits of the tropics and the vegetables of the north at any time of the year. The control group received a standard 12-week training program, while the experimental group received a modified 12-week training program. The modified program included a 4-week pre-training period followed by an 8-week training period. The subjects were then divided into two subgroups: the control subgroup and the experimental subgroup. The control subgroup received a standard 12-week training program, while the experimental subgroup received a modified 12-week training program. Figure 1 is a line graph showing the effect of the concentration of the inhibitor on the rate of polymerization. The y-axis is labeled 'Rate of polymerization' and ranges from 0 to 1.0. The x-axis is labeled 'Concentration of inhibitor' and ranges from 0 to 1.0. The curve starts at (0, 1.0) and decreases as the concentration of inhibitor increases, following a non-linear path that levels off towards a rate of approximately 0.2 at a concentration of 1.0.

Caviar to the General: Hugh Johnson in Tactical Blunder

Now do we have the better new as typified by such youths as John F. Philbin, the New York boxing champion, and the famous 1936 Olympic 100-meter runner, and part-time new paper editor-in-chief who could not even parade ground-wrestling as a job. It is a sight to see General Philbin swell his cheeks and expel a guardroom ground-sweeper and a detail to the boxing business. He has more white knuckles of new men and boxer bones on his fists, like a boxer, but a new-wrestler's sense of self has allowed it. You can hear his voice off the walls as he thunders in a corner, shouting "Card, for combat and for President."

GEN. JOHNSON AND "LITTL SIR"

GENERAL SMEDLEY BUTLER, THE EX-MARINE who used to force his fatigued and grimy troops to sing songs when approaching crowded areas so the populace could say "Yankee" with good heart, is the "ex-marine"
"ex-marine" has turned out some pretty meanie, pretty meanie tunes to the Chautauque, a cut.

"It may be true," Ardy Keaton said. "But I can't appreciate it like the poets do. I prefer to see things as they are and to encounter a miracle. But there's such a thing as fact and judgment even in a literary world. When some little son, who never in his life accomplished a deed of daring do in the blood and sand of the arena, shouts his 'little hero in blue' to blast a kid like Sella in Fiddlers, Sullivan was the ass who drew the parody. I think, for one, you would like to have a moment alone with him."

WISE WORD TO THE GENERAL

AS IT HAPPENS THE OFFICIAL who called that penalty is F.F. "Shorty" Miles, a 15-year-old barrel of a boy and gentle who is, by all means, I'll assume, quite a baseball fan. Walter can probably tell you that. I loved that the moral is, if you're not a fan, you're not a fan. I wish Shorty's uniform, he has to spend the next six months between the sheets at a state mental hospital. I know what I am talking about because I once spent six minutes with Shorty, and I was not alone, but surrounded by ten very healthy but very easily excited athletes during Shorty's senior year of high school. We wore the usual leather and a canvas football uniform, too.

HINKY, DINKY, PARLEY VOO

WHEN I LAST SAW "SHORTY," which was earlier than I tell he was still outwardly as sturdy and tough as he was twenty years ago when he captained a team which took Cornell 29-0, Ohio State 37-0, Penn 11-0, Navy 22-0, Carnegie Tech 41-0, Minnesota 71-0 and Lafayette 21-0. How's that for blood and sawdust, General?

Rochester N. Y. Dec. 1 (AP) — J. A. Sharp of the Rochester Yacht Club announced today the sale of his 18-foot, 100-horsepower yacht that successfully defended the Canada Cup in 1930, to Charles Francis Adams, former secretary of the Navy and famous Adams was skipper of the class 4 sloop Yankee in the last American trials for the America's Cup defender.

Adams bought Thibault for spring delivery at Marblehead, where the boat will join a rapidly expanding fleet of 120 white-water sloops. Sharp, a former commodore of the Rochester Yacht Club, said he would purchase a 10-meter sloop in one or two possible forthcoming American challenges in that class for the 1984 America Cup.

For the SNOW TRAIN

Skating is certainly a lot more fun when you have exactly the right clothes—and when you know you look positively outstanding. It's sheer delight! See this swanky, very full-grained wool skirt I found in the Jordan Marsh Company White Horse Inn—comes in French blue, green and red with bands of gay colors at the hem. $8.95. The Wamatta Quilted Jacket—sketched a copy of a Lane of Salzburg model, $12.95. The way this knitted Hug-me-tight button makes it fit beautifully—comes in navy—red—white and Kelley green, $2.50. The center cap sketched comes in red, white, blue, green, $60.

Almost any woman who looks at this wool gabardine suit I saw in Filene's Snow Train Shop will look no further. It's completely irrefragable in navy blue, green and black!

You'll adore the double-breasted belt hop short jacket and high-rise "trous." Note the zipper waistline—the pulls on ski-pants and jacket which snug both in at the waistline. It fits beautifully. Jacket is lined with flannel—ski pants with aaten. The wool gabardine has a hard finish to repel snow and water. It's exclusive with Filene's Snow Train in Boston, $18.95. This suit won the Fashion Congress' seal of approval! Also sketched the classic Gabardine Ski Cap, $2.25—the Parks MIT, lined for warmth, has leather palm and thumb, $2.50—Scarf, $1—gaiters, $3.25. In

Filene's Snow Train Shop,

You'll be a favorite big sister if you give him one of these good-looking All Wool Ski Suits, I found in White's. Usually $8.95 and $10.95. They're simply grand "buys" for $6.98. They're full-belted, fancy back coats in rich plaids that contrast with the double "knee-rod" Ski Pant. White's also have some handsome ski suits with full slipper style jackets! Sizes 6 to 12.

Ever know a real boy who didn't yearn to own a Mackinaw? Especially a sporty plaid Mackinaw, like this one I've sketched, from White's. It's all wool, has four pockets, fancy back with full belt, and comes in rich blue, brown and maroon plaids. Usually $7.95 it's now only $5.99. Sizes 8 to 18 years.

You'll find the Ski Suit and Mackinaw sketched in the Boy's Clothing Shop, on the 2nd Floor,
R. H. White Co.

Oh Say, Can You Ski?

It really doesn't seem to matter because—whether you're just an enthusiastic amateur or in the professional class—everyone and her sister has gone mad over Winter Sports! And I suspect the irresistible proving, Toys created for them, is half the lure! Even if you're starting from scratch, it will be quick, easy and convenient for you to assemble everything you need from the shops I've visited, to keep you warm, correctly dressed and completely equipped from ski boots to ski suits! They're spilling over with the best looking clothes—"right" as the stars turns taught by an expert! What's more, most of the stores have leading Professionals in their Winter Sports shops to give you valuable tips on Skiing! And—best of all—the weather man promises us snow for the week-end, so let's be prepared for a smart take-off and a happy landing at the foot of the mountain!

Your Sporting blood will tingle when you see the New Hovey's grand Ski Suit—the "Mt. Washington"! I've sketched it with the viewer Browne hunt more as a ski cap—and zipper open into a collar!

It's an all-wool "Snow-Sing" suit and that means it's water repellent, wind-proofed, and knitted for warmth without bulk! It comes in fast colors in navy, green, brown with contrasting color trim. It's tested for superior wear, too!

I couldn't get over the price only $18.95. The "Mt. Washington" exclusive with Hovey's, comes in sizes 14 to 20. You'll find this darling Ski Suit in the Snow Trail Shop, on the Second Floor of

Even the most critical Austrian Ski In-structor will nod an approving "recht" if you lined up for class in Brine's authentic winter sport togs.

The captivating all-wool coat with de-lachable hood, has rainbow stripes—sketched in white—also in blue, red or green and contrasting stripes, $10.95.

The "Kit Klein" black skating boot with chromium plated tubular Hockey skates, $12.00 — The white figure-Shoe-Skate combination—$15.00.

New Base Ski boot with a professionally approved ankle strap, $6.65—all sizes. Thick, soft, warm white wool sock (sketched), 40c.

Ski pants (not shown), $14.50 to $7.60. All wool gaiter-mitts, sketched, $1.45.

James W. Brine Co., Inc., smart Misses Dept., is just inside the door—street floor—on the way up from the South Station, 92 Summer St.

The way you'll look in this Ski Suit will delight the eternal siren in you! What's more you'll be correctly and warmly attired! You'll find this adorable Ski Suit in Leeds—it's trimmed with gay Tyrolean braid—comes in navy—brown—green, $10.95. The cute Tyrolean knitted waist is embroidered in gay colors—comes in white and all colors, $1.98. The delightfully soft turtle neck sweater in white or all colors, $2.98.
